

PRESIDENT WILL CALL LODGE AND OTHER REPUBLICAN CHIEFS TO CONFER AT WHITE HOUSE

Official Announcement of Intention Made By Secretary Tumulty.

WILL DISCUSS THE TREATY

Question of Lifting Blockade of Russian Ports Considered by Allied Council; U. S. Holds There Has Been None; Mutinies Held Up.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President Wilson has decided to invite Republican senators to call at the White House to discuss the peace treaty and the League of Nations, Secretary Tumulty announced today.

Senator Lodge, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was understood to be one of 15 Republican senators with whom the President desired especially to confer.

It was said that the invitations would not be limited to members of the Foreign Relations Committee. The President was represented as being anxious to talk to all members of the Senate, Republicans as well as Democrats, and to answer any questions they might desire to ask.

It also was indicated that as the President had placed himself at the disposal of the Foreign Relations Committee he would not begin his tour of the country until the committee had had a reasonable time in which to decide whether it wished to confer with him. A number of Democratic senators, including Senator Pomeroy of Ohio, a member of the committee, had appointments with the President today.

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, former chairman of the Senate Military Committee, whose criticism of the War Department early in the war led to a sharp statement from President Wilson, was among those invited to the White House today and those close to the President hoped the conference would result in the re-establishment of harmonious relations between the executive and the Oregon senator.

RUSSIAN BLOCKADE

DISCUSSED BY COUNCIL

PARKS, July 16.—The council of five met this afternoon. Its purpose was discussing the Russian blockade.

There have been proposals that the powers shall allow ships to enter Russian ports under special permits. The United States has consistently insisted that there has been no blockade against Russia, except such as was incident to the embargo on imports to Germany. Consequently the American delegates were not ready to take any action in the matter until instructions have been received from Washington. It has been suggested that most of the Black Sea ports could be blockaded by the Denikin government which is friendly to the allies but the supreme council has not decided to ask him to declare such a blockade.

A note has been received from Bela Kun, the foreign minister of the Hungarian soviet government, declaring that the Czechs and Rumanians violated the terms of the armistice with Hungary and that Hungarian forces were consequently ordered to cross the boundary fixed by the armistice. The note claims that this order was issued in self defense. The boundaries fixed by the armistice are so uncertain that the supreme council has referred the matter to a military commission for decision.

AMMUNITION FOR USE

NAPLES, Tuesday, July 15.—The steamer Cablons arrived here from London today but was stopped by workmen in the harbor who refused to allow her to continue her voyage because she carried ammunition. The crew of the Cablons was forced to unload the cargo, after which the ship was allowed to proceed. As the reason for their action in forcing the crew to unload the ammunition the labor workmen claimed that the ammunition was intended for use against the Bolsheviks in Russia.

The trustees are permitted to open part of the hospital grounds for public use under a new act, councilmen understand.

The councilman party also viewed Jefferson street which is to be widened at Apple street. Reports on both propositions will be submitted to council next Monday night.

NOT A VIOLATION

Attitude of America Toward Ireland Not Viewed in This Light.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—The British government does not regard the action of the United States Senate with respect to Ireland or the acts in the same connection of other persons or bodies representing the American people as a violation of Article 10 of the League of Nations covenant, said Andrew Bonar Law, the government leader, in the House of Commons today.

The government, Mr. Bonar Law added, would not put the question of the future government of Ireland on the program for consideration at the next meeting of the council of the League of Nations.

WANDERLUST "BORN IN ME," SAYS WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN IN EVERY COUNTY IN STATE

Miss Anna Rollman, a little old wrinkled woman of 72 years, was picked up here by the police this morning for begging. She was not locked up but was held at the police station until this afternoon when she left for Somerset on Baltimore & Ohio train No. 16. The woman is a professional traveler, having been on the road for 23 years, and declares she has been in every county in the state. She is now on her way to her home at York, Pa., where she will remain unless the wanderlust grips her again, in which event she may go to Delaware, she said.

Miss Rollman says she travels because it "was born in me." "My father traveled and sold needles, so I guess that is why I roam. When the wind blows and the sun shines and the flowers bloom I am up and off," she said.

The modes of travel for the woman are varied. If she has sufficient money she rides the cars or trains. Where there are not available or she has not enough money she walks unless picked up by a passing automobile.

"Aren't you afraid some man will catch you?" she was asked.

"Indeed I'm not," she answered. "I'm too old a bird."

THOMPSON INVESTORS LOSE MONEY THROUGH UNWISE MANAGEMENT

Comptroller of Currency Williams Charged With Unwisely Disposing of Assets.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Stockholders of the First National Bank of Uniontown, loss $2,387,000 through management of the bank's affairs after it had been closed by Comptroller of Currency Williams, A. E. Jones, representing shareholders of the bank, told the Senate Banking and Currency Committee today in opposing Williams' confirmation to succeed himself. The comptroller, Jones charged, unfairly and unwisely disposed of the bank's assets.

Charles Strawn was appointed receiver after the failure of J. V. Thompson, its president, Jones said, and while all depositors had been paid in full with interest and $605,000 in assets remained, the disposition of its assets made by its receiver had proved a heavy loss for the stockholders. The comptroller began at the "wrong end of the administration of the bank's affairs," the witness said. Thompson turned over 10,000 shares in a coal mining company, he said, agreeing to redeem them at $750,000. This stock was still retained, Jones declared, while the bank building appraised at $1,820,000 had been sold by the receiver for $700,000.

Caught while robbing a fraternity professor shot him as he was escaping with his booty. For 24 hours the identity of the dead man was a mystery. Then a former room mate identified the body. Search of his rooms by the police revealed they say, about $4,000 worth of plunder stolen from fraternity houses, boarding houses and other places.

COMPANY G BOYS AT MOUNT GRETNNA LIKE REGULARS

Captain Skomp's Command From Connellsville Very Quick at Learning.

NOT MUCH TIME TO PLAY

Governor Sprunt Reviews the Militiamen Thursday; They Break Camp on Saturday; Kitchen Force in a Row and Colonel Settles It.

By First Sergeant James A. List. CAMP MAJOR MARSHALL HENDERSON, MOUNT GRETNNA, July 14.—Sunday in camp was a very quiet day with inspection of quarters in the morning and brigade review in the afternoon. Church services were held in the evening at 8:45 for the men by the regimental chaplain, who preached a sermon along military lines. The hymns were played by the Third Regiment band and the benediction pronounced by a "parson" corporal from the ranks.

Things may have been quiet Sunday, but they started to pop shortly after 4 o'clock Monday morning, at which time the cooks and the kitchen police detail got on duty. They got into an altercation this morning and woke up the colonel, who angrily woke up the major, who in turn routed out Captain Skomp, but until the major himself had lectured the men in his pajamas against the advisability of waking the colonel's room. Now the order is to call cooks for 5:30 and not before.

As it is one of the first sergeant's duties to call the cooks in the morning, I am hoping they will stage another "knock down party" and maybe I won't have to call them until dinner time.

This morning in battalion drill, or the manual of arms, we were forced to start an awkward squad (names not mentioned for fear you would lose them as subscribers) and by noon we had them going the gait of regulars.

Advance guard and patrol duty was taken up in the woods this afternoon by four companies, each trying to surprise the other. Our company got a surprise. Two of our men got lost and were over four hours late in coming into camp. They did not say whether or not they had been back to Connellsville for a visit.

Our camp is run on the following schedule strictly adhered to: First call, 5:45; reveille, 5:55; assembly, 6; fatigue, 6:10; mess, 6:30; sick call, 7; drill, 8; recall, 11:30; mess, 12; drill call, 1:30; recall, 4:30; guard mounting, 5; parade, 5:30; retreat, 6; mess, 6:30; tattoo, 9; call to quarters, 10:15; taps, 10:30.

Some of the privates think the above entirely too much work so I am referring them to "Gummy" Dismouth, "Red" Hood, Jimmy Durr or some of those experienced overseas men who have been at the game hard enough to know if there is any way to play off without landing "K P."

Thursday will be Governor Sprunt's day, at which time the governor will review the troops. Friday will find us engaged in tactical problems (one of which the men hope will be extracting their pay from the paymaster).

Orders for Saturday state "camp will be broken" and that is true in more than one sense, because if the boys are paid Friday evening most of the camp will be "broken" during the night, judging from the way money changed hands last year.

No doubt the people wish to know how the home company is showing up at camp. After executing one movement today, Captain Skomp remarked that "it was as regular as rain on a tin roof." This may have been complimentary, or—suppose we let Captain Gans pass on this from his wealth of experience.

FINEST RAIN OF THE SEASON FALLS ON ST. SWITHIN'S DAY; BARN BURNED BY LIGHTNING

The finest rain of the season was that which fell last night. Lacking the torrential character of the others of the week it thoroughly soaked the earth, at least in this locality, reaching to a greater depth than any since in May, farmers say. Furthermore, it fell on St. Swithin's day. If the superstitious holds good it will rain now for 10 days, and the chestnut crop will be blighted.

A barn on the farm of Hugh Ball of near Leisnering, Dunbar township, was struck by lightning about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning and burned to the ground, with an estimated loss of $2,500. All but one load of Mr. Ball's wheat was inside the structure and the grain was consumed.

Crops in the fields in this section, especially in Dunbar township, suffered much at the hands of the recent storms.

In Derry township, Westmoreland county, a large barn owned by Theodore Menden was struck by lightning and burned, the loss being between $2,000 and $3,000.

The residence of Oscar Morgan on Allegheny street, South Connellsville, was struck by lightning early Tuesday morning. The bolt struck near a chimney and went down the side of the house, doing but little damage.

The condition of Mrs. Angela Nudo of Dawson, who was shocked when she attempted to pull away the heavily charged electric feed wire which had killed Ralph Nudo, her brother-in-law, and Giuseppe Caputo at Dawson early Monday morning was reported to be considerably improved today. The victims of the tragedy will be buried Thursday morning from the Catholic church.

At Carlisle Hospital.

Jesse W. Jordan of Connellsville was among the convalescent soldiers who arrived at the government hospital at Carlisle, Pa., recently. Others from this section are: Vincent Della Bella, Vernon, Floyd Coffman, West Newton, Sanatore George and Edward E. Miller, Greensburg.

The Uniontown welcome home fund was raised to $7,200 yesterday by the addition of $2,178 received during the day. Of this amount the county commissioners subscribed $1,000, and the remainder came from various other sources.

JOSEPH C. LYTLE, FORMER MERCHANT, SUDDENLY CALLED

Death of Well-Known Local Man Occurs During Visit at Irwin.

30 YEARS IN BUSINESS

Operated Shoe Store Where Young Trust Bank Now Stands but Had Been Retired for 15 Years; Was Prominent in Fraternal Circles.

While visiting at the summer home of his niece, Mrs. Thomas Wiltmer, at Irwin, Joseph C. Lytle, 66 years old, one of the most prominent and widely-known residents of Connettsville, died suddenly last night at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Lytle had been failing in health for some time, having never fully recovered from heart prostration which he suffered about three years ago. However, he was able to be about. Accompanied by Mrs. Lytle he went to Pittsburg on last Wednesday afternoon and visited relatives until Saturday. Enroute home Mr. and Mrs. Lytle stopped off at Irwin on Saturday to remain over Sunday as guests at the Wiltmer home. Mr. Lytle complained of not feeling as well as usual on Saturday night but his condition was not considered alarming until Sunday morning. He rallied at times and plans had been made to move him to his home today.

Mr. Lytle was born September 8, 1852 in old New Haven, a son of the late Joseph Milton and Margaret Gregg Lytle. He was a life-long resident of Connettsville. He was educated in the public schools and in his early manhood, with William F. Solomon, he opened a shoe store in West Crawford avenue, on the site where the Young Trust company building is now located. Later Mr. Lytle purchased Mr. Solomon's interest in the store and continued in the business for about 30 years. For the past 15 years he had lived retired.

In politics he was a staunch Republican and at one time served as a member of council. For a number of years he was a member of King Solomon Lodge, No. 346, F. & A. M., and at the time of his death was an officer. He was also a member of the Independent Order of Heptasophia, a member of the First Presbyterian church and of the W. A. Edie Bible class of the Sunday school.

October 21, 1881, Mr. Lytle was married to Miss Flora Cunningham of Connettsville. To the union five children were born, four surviving as follows: Mrs. Beulah Maxwell, at home; Mrs. James C. Long and Mrs. Frank Brown, both of Connettsville, and Mrs. J. C. Grossman, Slippery Rock. Eleven grandchildren and the following brothers and sisters also survive:

Mrs. Isabelle Reighard and Mrs. H. Y. Reighard, both of Pittsburg; Mrs. Julia Hamilton, Houston, Tex.; W. T. Lytle, Wellington, Kan.; John Lytle, Burlington, Kan.; C. A. Lytle, Sharon, and Louis E. Lytle, Pittsburg. Mr. Lytle was esteemed by all who knew him and his sudden death came as a great shock to his many friends here.

The body was brought here today and removed by funeral director Charles C. Mitchell to the family residence in East Fairview avenue.

The funeral service will be at the home in Fairview avenue Thursday at 4:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Hill Grove cemetery.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Build Up Permanently Nature At Its Best As An Aid.

If you who are weak, nervous and run-down from over-work, worry or any other cause would only realize that the summer months is the time to build up strength and vigor there would not be so many collapses and rushing for aid during the winter.

The plan to follow is simple—plenty of rest and good wholesome food along with a strength-creating, body-building tonic. Chasco-Vin with its Iron, Manganese, Hypophosphites, Nux and other strength-making ingredients, is the tonic we suggest.

If you follow this plan carefully you will notice a wonderful improvement in two weeks time. But don't give up too soon.

The local agents for Chasco-Vin are C. Roy Hezel, Woolworth Bldg., and A. A. Clarke, 323 Pittsburg St.—Adv.

Are to Feature Dawson Fair Which Opens on September 5.

Perhaps no other educational institution has grown in favor, purpose and utility as much as the Dawson fair. It is rated second to none and has taken its place as one of the leading exhibitions not only in Pennsylvania, but the entire country. The improvements made possible by its rapid growth and success tend to favor the numerous exhibitors who assemble on the grounds, but with all that has been said about what the fair has done there is still much to be said about what the fair will do in the future.

One of the outstanding features of this year's fair and exposition will be exhibits of the most progressive merchants and business houses, not only of Fayette county, but Westmoreland county as well. Already some merchants of Scottsdale, Uniontown and Connettsville have engaged space in which to exhibit their goods of their respective lines. So when the gates open on September 9 for the annual four-day fair the general public will see exhibits never before attempted by any fair or exposition of the kind.

LT. COLONEL TOLD WHERE TO GET OFF BY BUCK PRIVATE

Managing Editor of Stars and Stripes Wouldn't Have Officer Bossing Him.

SUCCESS OF ARMY PAPER

Weekly Circulation Reaches 536,000 After the Armistice and Earnings Are Turned Over to General Pershing for Use of the Army.

The Courier has received a copy of the final issue of "The Stars and Stripes," the official weekly newspaper of the American Expeditionary Forces, which said 30 on June 13. The publication served the American forces in France, Germany Italy and elsewhere for 16 months and it was one of the most interesting adventures undertaken in all the adventurous history of Journalism. Edited for the most part by enlisted men and dedicated to the buck private, the most numerous and most important person in the entire Army, there may be a little dispute about the latter statement by sergeants and such, it struck many a snare and encountered many a snag but never swayed from its course. Its managing editor for the greater part of its existence was a buck private who boasted of being the "lowest paid managing editor in the world," $33 being what he signed up for on the payroll and what he dragged down anywhere from the first to the 30th of the month.

The Stars and Stripes was popular with the A. E. F., as many Conneltsville soldiers will testify because the men who got it out had stood guard and done K. P. and hiked and rode in box cars—everything that an enlisted man is called on to do to be a soldier—and knew what they were talking about when they took their typewriters in hand. General Pershing approved its policy and though its editors ran afoul of high and mighty officers, they never came out anywhere but on top. After the armistice was signed, the Stars and Stripes enjoyed its greatest popularity and its circulation reached 536,000 copies weekly. What money it made, and the total ran into hundreds of thousands of francs—was turned over to General Pershing for the use of the Army.

Many officers and civilians wanted to shape the policy of the paper, but they didn't. In its own account of what happened between its birth and death, the Stars and Stripes touches humorously and with magnanimity on the efforts put forth to make it stay on the track.

"It's a long yarn," runs the account of one run in with authority. Perhaps we cannot do better than to cite the case of a certain lieutenant colonel who took himself seriously. This one, attached to G. H. Q. in a department but remotely allied to what we were doing, took it upon himself some time after the armistice to send us a letter somewhat as follows:

From (Name mercifully left blank anyway we can't spell it.)

To: Officer in Charge Stars and Stripes

Subject: Criticisms of A. E. F.

1. It has been noted by this office that several criticisms of the A. E. F. have appeared of late in the columns of your paper.

2. Some of these criticisms have been humorous.

3. These criticisms will cease.

"After the first explosion of Where does he get that stuff?" the then some what violent buck private managing editor got the lieutenant colonel's omelette on the phone. The fact that the man at the other end of the wire had silver stars on his scapular made no difference to our buck. At the conclusion of their little talk, the lieutenant colonel's boss took his charge gently by the hand and led him out behind the headquarters camera and quietly told him that a Boche named Guterberg discovered the art of printing in sixteen-something-or-other, that it had later been perfected by a piebald Tommy named Caxton, that a wild Irishman named Edmund Burke, whose speech he must have read some time in high school, once uttered some poignant remarks about the Fourth Estate and that, to conclude with this was the year 19 of the twentieth century—together with some elucidating remarks about the law of gravitation and the square of the hypothenuse. The story must have got around (yet we've never printed it until now) and after that we were able to work our own sweet will practically untroubled.

"We could tell another story if we wanted to—and we do. A certain high civilian dignitary of our government, newly arrived in France, decided to send out a call through our columns to any and all of the bright young men in the A. E. F. who, after being demobilized, would like to work for his department. A buck private was sent down to interview him, sized up the story for what it was worth and prepared to say good-bye.

Now look here," said the Civ. Man in substance "if you don't play that up just as I told you to and don't put that on the front page I'll

HER TROUBLED MIND CAME FROM ILLS OF THE BODY

But Mrs. Schnatterly, of Hopwood, Soon Called Nerv-Worth to the Rescue.

Out-of-town sufferers are prodding by Nerv-Worth virtues in the same eager fashion as do the city buyers and the former are quite as keen to tell neighbors and friends as are the grateful city folks. Here's the latest proof. It was given a short time ago to Uniontown's Nerv-Worth druggist. Wade H. Guyton—For years I have been very nervous and all run down. Nerv-Worth formed in my stomach and pressed on my heart and caused it to palpitate and intermit. This greatly alarmed me and I was in a troubled state of mind and uneasy as to the result. I had severe headaches. I tried all kinds of remedies but got no relief whatever.

I noticed Nerv-Worth statements in the papers from persons I knew who had been greatly benefited and purchased two bottles of Nerv-Worth and took it as directed and am glad to say all ailments mentioned have gone. I feel like a new woman. Sleep is good, stomach and digestion fine, good appetite and no more pains. Nerv-Worth did wonders for me.

see General Pershing in Chaumont on Saturday and I'll have you court-martialed and fired out of the Army—that being the Great Man's idea of condign punishment.

"The buck grinned, said 'Yes sir,' like a nice little boy, and went away. He wrote three paragraphs on his interview, which was later cut down to two by an elderly and tape-thrifty New England copy-reader—and buried away on page two.

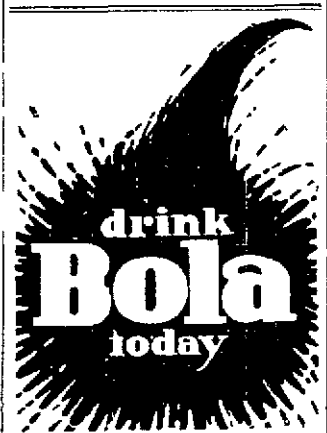

"About a week after that an emissary of the Federal Board called up most abjectly and said:

Please don't run any more stories about our work here and our desire to get a/c/p. Since you printed that first we have been so swamped with applications that our office force has been unable to handle them."

Women in Business.

Woman's power in America is well illustrated by the thousands of women who entered almost every line of business to replace men who were drafted during the war. Health proved their strongest asset. Many women, however, developed weak, nervous conditions and could not stand the strain of a business life. Such women should remember there is one tried and true remedy in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for forty-five years has been restoring health and strength to the women of America.—Adv.

serve to themselves the right to take action. Bear in mind that Japan who has her eye on Mexican territorial concessions is a member of the council.

The report of the assembly (composed of league members) must be concurred in by all members of the league represented on the council and majority of the other members of the league. The interested parties exclude. This would have the same effect as a unanimous report of the council but Japan again has a veto and so do 17 Latin American republics who are being warned by the one to fear the Colossus of the North. Quite a handicap to the United States. Furthermore nothing is to be found in Articles 12-16 which castutes an appeal to Article 16 to wit: "The treaty where otherwise expressed, provided in this covenant or in the terms of this treaty decisions of any meeting of the assembly or of the council shall require the agreement of all the members of the league represented at the meeting, which means a unanimous vote."

Should Mexico refuse the invitation to accept the obligations of the league on the purposes of the dispute and resort to war against the United States Article 16 would apply. This rule with effective military forces enforcement of the relations of all which all league members must cooperate calculated to overcome the offending state and it is at the agency governed by Article 16 a regular majority of agreement to the decisions of the assembly or council. Plainly the league covenant is a navybook Fair which would drag all nations everywhere without it. The United States could take no unimpeded action in safeguarding British and American lives and interests and effecting the restoration of dominion to a machous government second only to Bolshevik Russia.

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher Honestly advertised, Honestly placed before the public and from which he Honestly expects to receive his reward.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

THE SOISSON.

"ECHOES OF YOUTH"—Featuring Charles Richman and Leah Baird, well known players, is an interesting feature today. Miss Barry plays the role of a cabaret singer who has social ambition. Years before (on the story) she has transgressed against the law and sought the aid of a young attorney who succeeded in having her acquitted and, enchanted by her surpassing beauty, demands her heart and hand as his fee. Having nothing to lose the singer assents and they set a date for an early marriage. The day before the wedding is to take place a slight misunderstanding arises which results in a serious quarrel and the young woman disappears. A year later the young attorney receives a demand for blackmail which because of his standing in the community he dare not ignore. As a consequence he pays in silence and as the years go on and he rises high in the world he still continues his payments until he can stand it no longer. But no sooner does he rebel than his nemesis comes to his very stronghold and in person demands even more than she ever asked before—she wants his love. A stormy scene ensues in which is displayed such dramatic artistry that the most blasé theatregoer finds a jump in his pulse. A selected comedy is also being shown. Both productions will be presented tomorrow.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"RIDERS OF VENGEANCE"—In which Harry Carey is the star, is today's attraction. Mr. Carey, in the part of Cheyenne Harry Carson, whose entire family was assassinated on the steps of the little western church a moment after he had emerged with his new bride on his arm, has scored another success in portraying the life in the west just at the close of the Civil War. Lawlessness, so called as applied to conditions in the little towns of New Mexico is a minor theme. There was a law, a deadly, inexorable law, that was dealt both in justice, the law of the present and the Winchester. The photograph in "Riders of Vengeance" is of the highest order, the depiction of manners, methods and language of the early days absolutely faithful, being the result of exhaustive investigation by Carey and Jack Ford, the director, through the men who made the history in the West. The farrow plains and the mountains were employed for the background of the picture. Seena Owen is seen in the role opposite Carey. A selected comedy is also being shown. Thursday June Elvidge will be starred in "Love and the Woman."

CALIFORNIA FARMERS CONDUCT EXTENSION CONFERENCE IN AUTOS

Remarkable photo showing over 2,500 automobiles that brought people to the big picnic held at the United States experimental farm at Davis, Cal. This big farm has a school for scientific agriculture and stock raising.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An extension conference traveling in automobiles is an idea from the West.

At the close of the annual meeting of the California experiment station at Berkeley, the agents from 34 counties and the assistant agents, the county agent leader and his assistants were joined by 31 farmer delegates representing the county farm bureaus of the state. The entire party, comprising 151 people, spent seven days traveling by automobile from Berkeley to Riverside. The delegation passed through 11 counties, 9 of which have farm bureaus and 8 of which have resident county agents. In counties having agents, the agents occupied the leading car and conducted the party to interesting demonstration work. Short stops were made at which the county agent of the farm bureau of the county explained the method and results.

Some Things Seen.

Noteworthy things seen were poultry and bee demonstration work at Santa Cruz, stock judging at Salinas and Lankershim, the Jim Jeffries and "Lucky" Baldwin ranches in Los Angeles county, fire-fighting apparatus at Santa Paula, seedling preparation at the Camarillo ranch, raising of apricot trees, citrus pruning, the artesian well and drainage project in Orange county, spraying demonstration in walnut orchard, citrus-bud selection, and poultry culling.

Meetings were held each night at the farm bureau center in the county the party was visiting. The resident county agent explained in detail the work under way in the county and farm bureau members discussed subjects in which they were interested. The delegates considered the advisability of a state farm bureau federation and recommended to the county farm bureaus that such an organization be formed at a later date.

The party was entertained by the local farm bureau at dinner and supper at almost every county passed through, while in southern California the visitors were repeatedly met at county fairs by committees of women, and boxes of oranges were literally poured into the automobiles. The trip closed, after covering 937 miles, with a banquet at the mission inn at Riverside. "Slights" were neglected in order to attend the work of the conference.

Benefits From Trip.

The farmers participating were unanimous in approval of the plan. The automobile cost was met by the delegates at agricultural and the farmers delegates paid their own subsistence expenses or it was met by their farm bureaus. Aside from the practical value of the demonstrations and farm practices observed, the whole tone of county agent work in the state was improved. Farm bureau officials returned home with an enlarged outlook, the county agents saw demonstrations and organizations work under a variety of conditions, and the people of the counties visited were given an enlarged vision of the state and national extent of the work.

While such an extended trip is possible only where roads are highly improved, the idea seems to be an excellent one, department of agriculture officials believe, and similar or less ambitious trips doubtless could be planned in a number of the states with real value to the extension organization and work.

FOR SPORTS WEAR

Salmon colored silk jersey is combined with a drop-stitch tricotette to make this frock of straight and charming lines. Dainty white frills of lace serve for vest and peep-out at the sleeves. Her girlish is one of those two toned silhouettes—salmon on one side, French blue on the other. A single flower blooms at the crusting place of the skirt ends.

LUCK AND CHANCE OF LIFE

Abundant Reasons Why Fighting Men Develop a High Degree of Fatalistic Reasoning.

As I tour the military hospitals, says a writer in a London paper, I hear strange stories from the ward sisters, from matrons herself, and from men of all grades in the serried rows of beds. Poor M— was wounded at Mons, and gassed at La Bassée—only to be ignominiously killed by an omnibus in the city street at home! Whole families of sons lie buried in France. But I know a case in which four sons and a son-in-law joined up in August, 1914, and went down through the whole stupendous drama, without one of the five getting so much as a scratch! I know a heroic major, who had the maddest escapes from shot and shell, and was killed at last by a falling branch of a tree whilst at home on leave.

I know a chaplain V. O. who all but broke his neck on a flight of stone steps at Saighon Towers, where he was Countess Grosvenor's guest. I know a war correspondent, of many fierce campaigns, who met his death after all in a London air raid. And I talked with the sole survivor of a ship, who turned out to be the only member of the crew who could swim! How shall we explain these vagaries? They made fatalists of our men, and one day in the hospital, I came upon a lad who was reading the Mosaic Koran. He held up the page to me, and pointed to the verse: "No hap chance, but the same was written in the Book of Decrees!"

BRILLIANT DOUBLE PLAY

Donna Young, playing right field for the Giants, pulled off a brilliant double play in a recent game against the Phillies. Hogg was on first and Cady on third, when Whitted hit a fly to Young. Hogg thought Cady would try to score and that Young would throw home, so he lit out for second. Cady held his base. Young threw to second ahead of Hogg, and the latter was caught between first and second. He turned back to first. Doyle threw over Cady's head at first. Young moved in, got the ball and tagged Hogg as he came into the base.

IRON OUT FENDER DENTS

The greatest care must be taken in straightening out dents in the fenders. If the parts are not to assume a battered appearance. The only satisfactory method is to remove the fender and get it on the bench. Beneath it should be placed a block of wood cut to fit snugly the curve of the fender. Then the dents can be pounded out with comparatively little injury to the finish and general appearance of the parts. Incidentally it is a good plan to use a leather mallet for this work or to cover the head of an ordinary hammer with a number of thicknesses of cloth.

DO AWAY WITH OIL TROUBLES

Where hard oil is used as a lubricant for automobile spring bolts, it sometimes dries in the small holes and grooves that feed it to the bearing surfaces, thus preventing the parts from being properly lubricated, writes Otto Reynolds in Popular Science Monthly. This causes the bolts and spring eyes to wear out quickly. A

Using Thin Oil in Hard-Grease Caps: way is illustrated whereby this condition may be remedied successfully by applying oil cups for this oil. Drill a hole large enough to allow the oil to be poured in through the cap and threaded portion of the bolt as shown in the illustration. Then turn the cap half way around, thus completely closing the hole.

WALLY SCHANG IS FAVORED

Placed in Fifth Position in Bating Order of Boston Red Sox—Unusual for Catcher.

It is seldom indeed, that a catcher is placed as high as fifth in the batting order of a major league team, as is the case with W. H. Schang of the Boston Red Sox. Schang is not only a fine batter, batting from either side of the plate, but he is a fast base runner, something unusual in a catcher.

National Geographic advertisement.

TO FIND CARBURETOR LEAKS

Excellent Plan is to Immerse Suspected Part in Hot Water and Watch for Bubbles.

An excellent way to locate suspected leaks in the carburetor float is to immerse the part in hot water. In this way any gasoline in the interior will be vaporized and will force its way out of the hole, which may be located by watching for the bubbles to rise. The float should, of course, be removed from the water the instant the bubbles appear.

HOME GARAGE FLOOR SPACE

Absolute Minimum Will Be Found to Be Nothing Less Than Twelve by Twenty Feet.

In planning the home garage, remember that for a single-car the minimum floor space will be 12 by 20 feet if you purpose doing car work on the vehicle in its shelter. Also these dimensions do not allow room for either a work bench or for storage space, they are simply the irreducible minimum.

BE CERTAIN VENT IS OPEN

A Little Attention to This Important Matter Will Frequently Save the Driver Annoyance.

Remember that gravity and vacuum feed gasoline systems have to have a vent in the tank which is in or around the filler cap. Look for this occasionally and run a wire through it to make sure that it is open. If it is not, you will have engine troubles that may puzzle you and take a long time to trace.

USE FOR SANDPAPER-BLOCK

Motorist Will Find It Handy for Cleaning Up Punctures in the Inner Tubes.

Motorists who do their own tire repairing will find it well worth while to tack a piece of sandpaper to a cylindrical block of wood three inches in diameter and a foot long. For cleaning up punctures in inner tubes it is often handy to have small, flat or rounded sticks of wood wrapped with sandpaper.

"The automobile shops. This spring they've finished eight automobiles and sold them all, and they've got twelve more almost finished, and they're sold already! Eugene is so gay over it! They're very interesting to look at behind the driver's seat there's a sort of box where four people can sit, with a step and a little door at the rear, and—"

"I know all about it," said George. "I've seen any number like that, east. You can see all you want of 'em if you stand on Fifth avenue half an hour any afternoon. I've seen half a dozen go by almost at the same time—within a few minutes, anyhow; and of course electric hansom are a common sight there any day. I hired one myself the last time I was there. How fast do Mr. Morgan's machines go?"

"Much too fast! It's very exhilarating—but rather frightening; and they do make a fearful uproar. He says, though, he thinks he sees a way to get around the noisiness in time."

"I don't mind the noise," said George. "Give me a horse for mine, though, any day. I must get up a race with one of these things. Pardon me! I leave it one mile behind in a two-mile run. How's grandfather?"

"He looks well, but he complains sometimes of his heart."

George had taken off his coat. "I don't like to hint to a lady," he said, "but I do want to dress before dinner."

"Don't be long; I've got to do a lot of looking at you, dear!" She kissed him and ran away, giggling.

But his Aunt Fanny was not so fond; and at the dinner table there came a spark of liveliness into her eyes when George patronizingly asked her what was the news in her own "particular line of sport."

"Well, what's the gossip? You usually hear pretty much everything that goes on around the nooks and crannies in this town, I hear. What's the last from the gossip's corner, auntie?"

Fanny dropped her eyes, but a movement of her lower lip betokened a tendency to laugh as she replied, "There hasn't been much gossip lately except the report that Lucy Morgan and Fred Kinney are engaged—and that's quite old by this time."

There was a clatter upon George's plate. "What—what do you think you're talking about?" he gasped.

Miss Fanny looked up innocently. "About the report of Lucy Morgan's engagement to Fred Kinney."

George turned dumbly to his mother and Isabel shook her head reassuringly. "People are always starting rumors," she said. "I haven't paid any attention to this one."

"But you—you've heard it?" he stammered.

"Oh, one hears all sorts of nonsense, dear. I haven't the slightest idea that it's true."

"Then you have heard it?" George turned pale.

"Eat your dinner, George," his aunt said sweetly. "Food will do you good. I didn't say I knew the rumor was true. I only said I'd heard it."

"Fanny, you're a hard-hearted creature," Isabel said gently. "You really are. Don't pay any attention to her, George. Fred Kinney's only a clerk in his uncle's hardware place; he couldn't marry for ages—even if anybody would accept him!"

George breathed tumultuously. "I don't care anything about 'ages'! What's that got to do with it?" he said, his thoughts appearing to be somewhat disconnected. "Ages, don't mean anything! I only want to know—I want to know—I want—"

"You must finish your dinner, dear," his mother urged. "Dop!"

"I have finished. I've eaten all I want. I don't want any more than I want. I don't want—!" He rose, still incoherent. "I prefer—I want—please excuse me!"

He left the room, and a moment later the screens outside the open front door were heard to slam.

"Fanny! You shouldn't—!"

"Isabel, don't reproach me. He did have plenty of dinner, and I only told the truth; everybody has been saying—"

"We don't actually know there isn't," Miss Fanny insisted, giggling. "We've never asked Lucy."

"I wouldn't ask her anything so absurd!"

"George would," George's father remarked. "That's what he's gone to do."

Mr. Minsler was not mistaken; that was what his son had gone to do. Lucy and her father were just rising from their dinner table when the stirred youth arrived at the front door of the new house. It was a cottage, however, rather than a house; and Lucy had taken a free hand with the architect, achieving results in white and green outside and white and blue inside to such effect of youth and daintiness that her father complained of "too much springtime!"

The whole place, including his own bedroom, was a young damsel's boudoir, he said, so that nowhere could he smoke a cigar without feeling like a ruffian. However, he was smoking when George arrived, and he encouraged George to join him in the pastime, but the latter, whose air was both tense and preoccupied, declined with something like agitation.

"I never smoke—that is, I'm seldom—I mean, no, thanks," he said. "Mean not at all. I'd rather not."

don't work. I only work at the end of the term. There isn't much to do."

Eugene's perplexity was little decreased, and a tinkle of the doorknob afforded him obvious relief. "It's my foreman," he said, looking at his watch. "I'll take him out in the yard to talk. This is no place for a foreman." And he departed, leaving the "living room" to Lucy and George.

"What's wrong, George?" she asked softly.

"What do you mean? What's wrong? What makes you think anything's 'wrong' with me?"

"You do look pale, as papa said, and it seemed to me that the way you talked sounded—well, a little confused."

"See here!" George stepped close to her. "Are you glad to see me?"

"You needn't be so fierce about it!" Lucy protested, laughing at his dramatic intensity. "Of course I am! Do tell me what's the matter with you, George!"

"I will," he exclaimed. "I was a boy when I saw you last. I see that now, though I didn't then. Well, I'm not a boy any longer. I'm a man, and a man has a right to demand a totally different treatment."

"I don't seem to be able to understand you at all, George. Why shouldn't a boy be treated just as well as a man?"

George seemed to find himself at a loss. "Why shouldn't? Well, he shouldn't, because a man has a right to certain explanations."

"What in the world do you want me to explain?"

"Your conduct with Fred Kinney!" George shouted.

Lucy uttered a sudden cry of laughter; she was delighted. "It's been awful!" she said. "I don't know that I ever heard of worse misbehavior! Papa and I have been twice to dinner with his family, and I've been three times to church with Fred—and once to the circus! I don't know when they'll be here to arrest me!"

"Stop that!" George commanded fiercely. "I want to know just one thing, and I mean to know it, too!"

"Whether I enjoyed the circus?"

"I want to know if you're engaged to him!"

"No!" she cried, and lifting her face close to his for the shortest instant possible, she gave him a look half merry, half defiant, but all fond. It was an adorable look.

"Lucy!" he said huskily.

But she turned quickly from him, and ran to the other end of the room. He followed awkwardly, stammering.

"Lucy, I want—I want to ask you."

"Will you—will you—will you be engaged to me?"

She stood at a window, seeming to look out into the summer darkness, her back to him.

"No," she murmured, just audibly.

"Why not?"

"You're too young."

"Is that—?" he said, gulping—"Is that the only reason you won't?"

She did not answer.

As she stood persistently staring out of the window with her back to him she did not see how humble his attitude had become; but his voice was low, and it shook so that she could have no doubt of his emotion.

"Lucy, please forgive me for making such a row," he said, thus gently. "I've been—I've been terribly upset—terribly! You know how I feel about you, and always have felt about you. Don't you?"

Still she did not move or speak.

"Is the only reason you won't be engaged to me you think I'm too young, Lucy?"

"It's—it's reason enough," she said faintly.

At that he caught one of her hands, and she turned to him: there were tears in her eyes, tears which he did not understand at all.

"Lucy, you little dear!" he cried. "I knew you—"

"No, no!" she said, and she pushed him away, withdrawing her hand. "George, let's not talk of solemn things."

"Solemn things!" Like what?"

"Like—being engaged."

But George had become altogether jubilant, and he laughed triumphantly. "Good gracious, that isn't solemn!"

"It is too!" she said, wiping her eyes. "It's too solemn for us."

"No, it isn't! I—"

"Let's sit down and be sensible, dear," she said. "You sit over there—"

"I will if you'll call me 'dear' again."

"No," she said. "I'll only call you that once again this summer—the night before you go away."

"That will have to do, then," he laughed. "So long as I know we're engaged."

"But we're not!" she protested. "And we never will be if you don't promise not to speak of it again until I tell you to!"

"I won't promise that," said the happy George. "I'll only promise not to speak of it till the next time I call me 'dear'; and you've promised to call me that the night before I leave for my senior year."

"Oh, but I didn't!" she said earnestly, then hesitated. "Did I?"

"Didn't you?"

"I don't think I meant it," she murmured, her wet lashes flickering above troubled eyes.

"I know one thing about you," he said, gaily, his triumph increasing. "You never went back on anything you said yet, and I'm not afraid of this being the first time!"

"But we mustn't let—!" she faltered; then went on tremulously. "George, we've got on so well together we won't let this make a difference between us, will we?" And she joined in his laughter.

"It will all depend on what you tell me the night before I go away. You agree we're going to settle things then, don't you, Lucy?"

"I don't promise."

"Yes, you do! Don't you?"

"Well—"

CHAPTER X.

That night George began a jubilant warfare upon his Aunt Fanny, opening the campaign upon his return home at about eleven o'clock. Fanny had retired, and was presumably asleep, but George, on the way to his own room, paused before her door, and surrounded her in a full hurricane:

"As I walk along the Boy de Balong With my independent air, The people all declare, 'He must be a millionaire.' Oh, you near them sight, and wish to die, And see them wink the other eye. At the man that broke the bank at Monte Carlo!"

After breakfasting in bed, George spent the next morning at his grandfather's and did not encounter his Aunt Fanny until lunch, when she seemed to be ready for him.

"Thank you so much for the serenade, George!" she said. "Your poor father tells me he'd just got to sleep for the first time in two nights, but after your kind attentions he lay awake the rest of last night."

"Perfectly true," Mr. Minsler said grimly.

"Of course, I didn't know, sir," George hastened to assure him. "I'm awfully sorry. But Aunt Fanny was so gloomy and excited before I went out, last evening, I thought she needed cheering up."

He turned to his mother. "What's the matter with grandfather?"

"Didn't you see him this morning?" Isabel asked.

"Yes. He was glad to see me, and all that, but he seemed pretty fidgety. Has he been having trouble with his heart again?"

"Not lately. No."

"Well, he's not himself. What's he upset over?"

Isabel looked serious; however, it was her husband who suggested gloomily, "I suppose the Major's bothered about this Sydney and Amelia business, most likely."

"What Sydney and Amelia business?" George asked.

"Your mother can tell you, if she wants to," Minsler said. "It's not my side of the family, so I keep off."

"It's rather disagreeable for all of us, George," Isabel began. "You see, your Uncle Sydney wanted a diplomatic position, and he thought Brother George, being in congress, could arrange it. George did get him the offer of a South American ministry, but Sydney wanted a European ambassadorship, and he got quite indignant with poor George for thinking he'd take anything smaller—and he believes George didn't work hard enough for him. George had done his best, of course, and now he's out of congress, and won't run again—so there's Sydney's idea of a big diplomatic position gone for good. Well, Sydney and your Aunt Amelia are terribly disappointed, and they say they've been thinking for years that this town isn't really fit to live in—for a gentleman," Sydney says—and it is getting rather big and dirty. So they've sold their house and decided to go abroad to live permanently; there's a villa near Florence they've often talked of buying. And they want father to let them have their share of the estate now, instead of waiting for him to leave it to them in his will."

"Well, I suppose that's fair enough," George said. "That is, in case he intended to leave them a certain amount in his will."

"Of course that's understood, George. Father explained his will to us long ago; a third to them, and a third to Brother George, and a third to us."

Her son made a simple calculation in his mind. Uncle George was a bachelor, and probably would never marry; Sydney and Amelia were childless. The Major's only grandchild appeared to remain the eventual heir of the entire property, no matter if the Major did turn over to Sydney a third of it now. "Well, I suppose it's grandfather's own affair. He can do it or not, just as he likes. I don't see why he'd mind much."

"He seemed rather confused and pained about it," Isabel said. "I think they oughtn't to urge it. George says that the estate won't stand taking out the third that Sydney wants, and that Sydney and Amelia are behaving like a couple of pigs. I'm on George's side, whether he's right or wrong; I always was from the time we were children; and Sydney and Amelia are hurt with me about it, I'm afraid. They've stopped speaking to George entirely. Poor father! Family rows at his time of life."

An hour after lunch, George strolled over to his grandfather's, intending to ask for further information, as a thoroughly interested.

He did not carry out this intention, however. Going into the big house by a side entrance, he was informed that the Major was upstairs in his bedroom, that his sons Sydney and George were both with him, and that a serious argument was in progress.

George went to the foot of the great stairway. He could hear angry voices overhead—those of his two uncles—and a plaintive murmur, as if the Major tried to keep the peace.

Such sounds were far from encouraging to callers, and George decided not to go upstairs until this interview was over. He turned down the stairway, and going quietly into the library, picked up a magazine—but he did not open it, for his attention was instantly attracted by his Aunt Amelia's voice, speaking in the next room. The door was open and George heard her distinctly.

"Isabel does? Isabel?" she exclaimed, her tone high and shrill. "You needn't tell me anything about Isabel Minsler. I guess, my dear old Frank Bronson! I know her a little better than you do, don't you think?"

George heard the voice of Mr. Bronson replying—a voice familiar to him as that of his grandfather's attorney-in-chief and chief intimate as well. He was a contemporary of the Major's, being over seventy, and they had been through three years of the war in the same regiment.

"TO BE CONTINUED."

THE FULL ARMORED BANK

Banker Tells About the Full Armored Bank.

"We have talked so much about armored ships, armored air craft and war tanks that it seems only appropriate to speak of the armored bank," said James L. Kurtz, cashier of the Citizens National bank, 338 Pittsburg street, Connelville, to a reporter of The Courier. "This bank," he said, "is full armored. Its large resources, strong management and federal government supervision assure positive safety for deposits."
